NINA & IRIS LEAD EUROPEAN WOMENS RACING CHALLENGE

Recent race two of the European Women's Challenge in Assen, The Netherlands was a great event for most of the riders of the EWC as they had always dreamed of riding on the famous TT Circuit Assen a favourite venue of the worlds best!

With a combination of typical Assen weather (wet and dry) the race was held within one of the regularly scheduled Dutch nationals. The women's race event combines both the 1000cc and the 600cc class.

There were just 17 European contenders, six were in the 1000cc class and eleven in the 600cc, of which seven were from The Netherlands--only three Netherlanders competed in race one, Vallenga Italy. Its normal that the country hosting the venue has the highest local participants. All riders qualified except one, but was allowed to participate during the second of three only European race venues.

Germany's Nina Prinz (the next Katja Poensgen?) captured first place in the 1000cc competition with Iris Ten Katen winning the 600cc. Iris nearly took the 2006, 600cc championship and is definitely set up to win this year with her current standings lead.
