600 class it was a grand victory for Iris Ten Katen of The Netherlands who competing against but 7 others in the 600cc class on her Honda CBR600RR crossed the finish line first wining the race and achieving total championships for the 600cc class 2007. Iris also succeeded in the fastest lap for the 600cc class on the track she has come to know so well, over the years.

Nina Prinz of Germany riding for the Ducati Y2K Team, placed first place for the Superstock 1000 class competing against 4 other European women contenders and took the class win and the European title for the same class. Additionally Nina achieved a new lap time record for a female at the well known Oschersleben track.

It was a wonderful final celebration in Germany's Oschersleben paddock during the official UEM prize-giving for the European Championship winners. It's just been three years that the European Women's Cup has existed and even though the venues have reduced back to but three, it is still gathering an increasing interest and participation from public and media.
